The seminar provides an overview of Old Assyrian Political, Social and Economic history in Northern Mesopotamia and Anatolia in the early 2nd millennium BCE. Classes integrate textual records in translation from a wide variety of genres (including private and state letters, legal and administrative records, loans and quittances, caravan texts, commercial records, partnership contracts, family and state law) with an overview of Assyrian and Central Anatolian history, visual, and material culture. Course readings combine standard introductions, thematic and core studies in the field.
